UWF 2023 Field School Review and Goals for 2024

Dr. Ramie Gougeon, Dr. Greg Cook and Dr. John Worth

The UWF Department of Anthropology will be offering two archaeological field schools in Summer 2024. The terrestrial archaeology field school will be focusing on surveys of the university campus and beyond, while the maritime field school will undertake excavations of Luna shipwrecks that were postponed in the Summer of 2023! Faculty from the department will be presenting highlights from past field seasons alongside plans for the summer season to come.

This summer marks Dr. Ramie Gougeon's 11th field school with UWF. His projects frequently encounter sites from across the long prehistory of our region as well as historic sites from the colonial to modern eras. Dr. Gougeon teaches the students about research methods typical of contractual archaeology as that is where many will find employment after graduating from UWF.

Dr. Greg Cook has assembled a team to begin the long-awaited exploration of the third of Luna's ships to be discovered by UWF maritime archaeologists in Pensacola Bay. Dr. Cook will give a summary of fieldwork on the Luna fleet to date. We also think members of PAS may be interested in hearing about the complicated process of securing a permit to conduct this summer's excavations!

Even though Dr. John Worth and his team will not be in the field this summer, that does NOT mean that work on the Luna Settlement site is stopping! Dr. Worth will review the highlights of UWF's exploration of the Luna site to date. He will also fill us in on the planned analyses and write-ups their research grant will be supporting this summer.

Tour A: KAYAK TOUR Archaeology of Pensacola Bay

While Florida is known for its beaches, it has a variety of different waterways that humans used for thousands of years. Bays, estuaries, rivers, and springs are just some of the places with rich archaeological remains. Join archaeologists from the Florida Public Archaeology Network as we explore the rich archaeological past of Pensacola from the water.

Our group will meet at Woodland Park, located at the intersection of Highpoint Drive and Fairpoint Drive in Gulf Breeze, at 9:00 am. Once everyone is on site, we will do a quick introduction and safety briefing. Once in the water, we will leisurely kayak for about 20 minutes to Deadman's Island. Please bring sun protection, drinking water, snacks, and wear comfortable clothes.

The cost for the kayak tour of Deadman's Island is $45 per person, covering kayak rental during tour, PFD (personal flotation device), and the delivery of kayaks to the site. We're limiting the number of participants to 12 due to kayak availability. Meet at 9:00 am at Woodland Park, 2 Highpoint Dr., Gulf Breeze, FL 32561
Tour Duration Approximately 2.5 hours

TOUR B:

WALKING TOUR

Historic St. Michael's Cemetery

Meet at 10:00 am at 6 N. Alcaniz St. Pensacola, FL

St. Michael's Cemetery, once a rural cemetery serving a colonial population, is today an eight-acre open air museum in the heart of urban, historic Pensacola that is a testament to the diverse history of the city. It is one of the two oldest extant cemeteries in the state of Florida and reflects the social history of the community. The cemetery is a contributing property to the Pensacola Historic District. Historical research and early maps indicate that the land in and around the modern cemetery was in use as a burying ground beginning in the second half of the 18th century with the earliest surviving above ground markers associated with Pensacola's Second Spanish Period (1781-1821). There are approximately 3200 marked graves in the cemetery with subsurface anomalies, possibly several thousand unmarked graves. Join archaeologists from the University of West Florida to learn about the decades of archaeological and historical research that has been conducted by UWF and the St. Michael's Cemetery Foundation. Parking is available on the eastern side of the cemetery on Florida Blanca Street or along Alcaniz Street.

Tickets are $20. Space is limited to 30 participants. Registration is Required.
